Combined Agency Alpha

1. The Combined Agency Alpha is necessary to update and verify appropriate personnel information maintained in AES files.
  2. The Combined Agency Alpha listing is essential to AES for access to personnel serial numbers. These are necessary for verifying and updating the AES test record file which is maintained on magnetic tape. The information it contains is also used to differentiate between people having the same name and to establish the current status of previously tested employees on whom test records are later requested.
  3. Members of this staff whose job it is to record or verify any of the required information have authorized access to the listing. These persons are:
